Centre Pompidou and Royal Commission for AIUla sign partnership agreement for the development of a contemporary art museum in AIUla (Saudi Arabia)

The Centre Pompidou and the Royal Commission for AIUla (RCU) signed on Sunday 12th March a partnership agreement in the framework of the project to create a museum of contemporary art in AIUla, Saudi Arabia.

The agreement was signed by Laurent Le Bon, President of the Centre Pompidou, and Nora Aldabal, Executive Director of Arts AIUla in presence of H.H. Prince Badr bin Farhan Al Saud, the Saudi Minister of Culture and Governor of RCU and Rima Abdul Malak, the French Minister of Culture.

This partnership aims to support the enhancement and development of the cultural, artistic and creative aspects of the AIUla site. The Centre Pompidou will contribute its scientific and technical expertise in the training of staff, particularly in the areas of conservation management of collections and mediation. It may also provide support for the organisation of cultural and event programming.
